Length of show

- 30-35 minutes
- There is no interval

Interaction

- CROWD_CTRL includes some moments of audience interaction.
- The dancers will talk directly to the audience and teach some dance moves.
- You can get involved and dance along if you like, or if you prefer not to interact that's also fine too.

Sound

- Music will be playing at a loud level for most of the show.
- One dancer talks to the audience at moments in the show – his voice is amplified by a radio microphone.
- The show includes some sound effects. For example, a police siren.
- The dancers encourage the audience to clap, cheer and make noise throughout the show.

Visuals

- The set includes a large LED screen wall which the dancers perform in front of.
- The LED screen will display visuals for the duration of the show
- Visuals include graphic illustrations, words and manipulated colours and shapes.
- The visuals will flash and move throughout the show

Meet the CROWD_CTRL Team

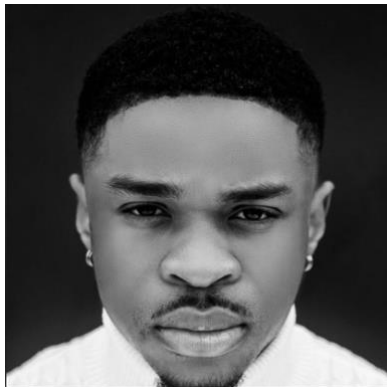

AndroidX – Artistic Director

AndroidX (Malick) has shaped the story and dances in the show. As ‘artistic director’ he has a vision for the show and how he wants it to look and feel. Malick also dances in the show.

MHz – Scenographers

MHz (Bex Anson and Dav Bernard) have created the audio and visual elements of the show. They have also helped shape the story and characters so the ‘live’ and ‘digital’ elements are linked.

Dancers

The show features 3 additional dancers:

SuperBenny – Benny Tantu

Will2k – Will Bernardo

HAPPYFEET – Elton Mota

Saehee Simmons – Costume Designer

Saehee has designed the costumes featured in the show.

Wumzum – Graphic Artist

Wumzum is an illustrator and has created the graphic novel illustrations featured throughout the show.
